OUR SERVICES

Leadership searches

We help you recruit leadership positions both locally and globally. We work with you in identifying, screening, evaluating, and recruiting quality candidates.

As we seek experienced leadership for it, we systematically search candidates who combine exceptional administrative skills and outstanding management abilities with proven educational leadership experience.

Allied / After school activities

'Develop ~~via~~ the right brain' – bringing out the achiever in every child is a unique programme which provides the students a quality opportunity to enhance skills based on a well researched curriculum.

- A combination of outdoor / indoor / performing arts which is graded to the current exposure level of the child.
- The above programmes also mean a positive financial implication to the school.

Greetings and welcome to the November issue of news.desk

The festivities of Divali are not quite over and we are already looking at the Christmas season. There are celebrations, merriment and parties around us. This is that time of the year when the stores and roads are full of people with a crossed look about them. The spirit of giving abounds in this season. All of us are familiar with giving presents to loved ones but how many of us give anything else, especially when something is not expected of us?

There are three types of givers. There are those that give because they get importance and benefit for it. Then there are those that give, but do so grudgingly because they really don't want to, but have to. All they get for it are negative emotions surging within. And then there are those who give simply for the joy of giving, and incredible joy is their reward.

I wonder why people find it so hard to give. People find it difficult to give their time and energy to make an outing happen, or read to their child. They say they have to make time, when in essence they have to give time. How easy it is to string some words together and simply give random strings.
